FIGURES DISCLOSE HOW INVESTMENTS AFFECT LABOR

Less than twenty-five years ago the average mechanic worked for 25 cents an hour, 50 hours a week. Today in the manufacturing industries the average mechanic works 44 hours a week at an hourly rate of 86 cents to 90 cents. In a quarter of a century the hourly wage rate for mechanics increased 244 per cent, while their hours of work decreased 27 per cent. Similar illustrations might be found in any typical American industry.

In 1914 the manufacturing industries of this country paid $1,067,719,000 in wages. In 1923 their total payroll was $10,985,000. This year the total will probably be even somewhat larger.

In almost all the trades wages have more than doubled since 1914. The present high standard of wages in the United States is made possible because money capital has been converted into producing capital in the form of modern machinery. This means increased efficiency that has made enormous production possible.

Workers in the shoe industry for example, are receiving twice the wage scale of 1900, simply because 100 pairs of shoes, that 25 years ago required 236 hours of man labor, can now be made in 168 hours.

As workers save a portion of their earnings and put them to work in sound enterprises they are helping to cut the cost of production, and which wage increases depends. Every dollar safely invested and used for industrial expansion, to acquire more efficient machinery and larger factories, works to cut production costs. Thus the dollar placed in honest, capable, business hands, assuring the investor a steady income, is helping the worker gain shorter hours, better working conditions, improved products and higher wages.

And equally on the other hand, the dollar used to finance wildcat schemes cripples honest industry and keeps wages down.

While the old songs used to go to the heart, the new ones seem to go to the feet.

HEALTH IS THE GREATEST ASSET OF ANY INDIVIDUAL

Georgia is a big state; she is a great state; she is a growing state; she is a state of wonderful possibilities and opportunities.

Health is the greatest asset of any individual, coupled with the natural resources of Georgia, opens up the most inviting field to the individual who we must constantly, vigilantly guard every approach of our unseen enemies.

The unseen and microscopic germs, bacteria, bacilli are the things that take us away, that change us from a producing to a non-producing community. Malaria, hookworm, tuberculosis change and change quickly the balance from the credit to the debit side of the ledger.

Disease is preventable in a great measure and controllable in almost every case. It requires money for the employment of skilled assistance; it requires public interest and cooperation. Georgia has ample law, not only ample but adequate law. The Ellis law provides a local option system for a full-time health officer.

Thirty-three of our counties have provided for this; it is the right thing to do. Some of our counties have not taken full advantage, but they should. All counties that have employed the right type of health officer and who have been liberal enough to put in the proper size unit have been well pleased and have saved many times the cost. Some counties, owing to bad financing and bad management of their affairs, are so badly in debt that they cannot in their opinion afford a health officer, who would, if the matter were brought to their attention, put on a full-time health officer or a full-time public health nurse. This should and could be done in every county. A nurse would pay big dividends; she would be worth much to all types of citizens, especially the poor, who cannot have a special nurse in their homes. She would be of untold worth and assistance to the physicians of a county.

If our General Assembly would give us 6 cents or more per capita for next year and increase this 1 cent per year for seven years the State Board of Health could subsidize the weaker counties and give them enough money to enable them to put on a nurse at least, or possibly a part-time health officer, both or both still, and in this health officer and complete health unit.

Would you not be willing to give 12 cents a year to have a nurse in your community upon whom you could call, or a physician who would look after your children and your home? Any one would; it seems a foolish question to ask. Then may we ask to all seriousness why it is not done, why our county does not have it, why our school children are not given attention and our homes sanitary inspection? Why are our children not given free hookworm treatment, typhoid inoculation and protected from diphtheria? Why are the infectious diseases quarantined and the spread halted? Why? We ask you again, WHY?

A common drinking cup is dangerous. The common towel is a menace to health.

An open window bedroom helps to keep one well.

A walk in the open air every day is good exercise.

Spitting on floors or sidewalks spreads disease.

Clean hands before eating or handling food is a protection.

The typhoid season is here. It is better everyone to be careful about the drinking water and screen out the flies. It is not too late to take the typhoid vaccine. Get yours today! It is furnished free by the State Board of Health to your physician.

Tuberculosis is a house disease, using the word house to include our homes and work places. Bad housing conditions breed this disease. Outdoor workers, who are properly housed and have fresh air and sunlight, are its natural foes.

In doing things that are worth while, co-operation counts for much. In fact, it is almost everything. One person alone cannot transform a dirty, close and ugly one. But when the neighbors all pitch in and help, the job is easy and soon completed.

Cancer is on the increase, we are told; this, notwithstanding many ad- vertised cancer cures. There is no such thing as a cancer cure; the only scientific thing to do for cancer is to have a competent surgeon remove it as growth. Any lump should receive immediate attention; delay is death.

Tuberculosis in children is very common, but is not easily detected. The children do not complain. The glands are quite often the point of attack. The old term, "scrofula," is tuberculosis in the majority of cases. The bacilli of tuberculosis travel along the glandular system by the lymphatic route to the lungs or elsewhere.

COTTON ASSOCIATION COMPLETES ITS WORK

CHECKS ARE MAILED IN FINAL SETTLEMENT TO MEMBERS OF GEORGIA ASSOCIATION.

Atlanta, Ga., June 29.—Last Thursday, the Georgia Cotton Growers Co-operative Association completed the big task of mailing out to its members final settlement and payment on their 1924 cotton. The payment amounted to $2,159,000.

The total payment made to the members during the past year, including the final payment, reached $12,000,000 on the 105,982 bales of cotton delivered by the members.

Remarkable progress was shown during the past season, according to the statement issued by the Association, in the matter of operating costs. The cost of operation including storage, insurance, interest, office overhead and all items of expense, amounting to 99 points, or $4.856 on an average bale of cotton, the average weight per bale of cotton handled by the Association during the past season being 491 pounds.

During the first two years of the Association, when the organization was being built and worked out, expenses of operation were approximately $7.00 per bale. Officials of the organization accounted for the reduction in overhead or operating costs in a number of ways: Reduced interest and storage charges; cut expenses considerably; with three years' experience, it has been made possible for the organization's affairs to be handled by a much less number of employees, due to their experience and to the development of the Co-operative. However, it was emphasized that the one thing that has been most instrumental in the reduction of expenses is the fact that the members delivered 40,000 bales more cotton this year than for the previous year, and that as the members have come to learn more of their organization, their co-operation as individual members, is better, necessitating much less work, thereby cutting down the costs of operation.

The good middling white 1-16 inch pool brought the members of the Association who delivered such cotton, a net price of 26.02 cents per pound, after expenses were deducted. This was the highest price paid.

The pool that classed ordinary, which is the lowest grade of cotton with the exception of dogs—practically unmarketable—brought the members 19.73 cents, net, and in this pool there were only 69 bales delivered out of the total of 105,982 bales handled by the Association.

A net price of 23.41 cents was paid to all members on strict middling white 7-8 to 1 inch brought a net average price to all members who delivered such cotton of 22.85 cents, or within 15 points of 23 cents per pound net.

In the above three pools were more than 55,000 bales of cotton, or more than a half of the cotton delivered by the members of the Association, and each of these pools consisted of approximately the same number of bales.

The Association handled 48 pools during the past season, each bringing different net prices, for the different pools which each member delivered cotton are being mailed to him with their final settlement checks.

A number of the members delivered long staple cotton to the Association and the price paid them for their cotton, depending on the grade and staple, ranged anywhere from 26.76 cents to 31.76 cents per pound net.

The announcement of the Association in connection with its final payment pointed out has a better understanding of Co-operative marketing by the growers and business men, progress by the Association, and the assistance that the Co-operative has been able to render its members this year in producing their crops where they were able to get assistance locally, (amounting to three million dollars loaned through member corporations) accounts for the fact that some of the large producers in Georgia have signed up since January 1st.

The new members signed during the past few months, number something like 1500, and in the roster of new members, are many growers who produced as much as 100, 200 and as high as 800 bales the past season.

FAVOR STOCK LAW AS ECONOMY MEASURE

The writer believes the stock law should be voted in as soon as possible. We need this law for the system and execution it would provide.

If your neighbor kills your stock over a fence, there is but little you can do about it except to shut them up, which means an added expense. If, however, your neighbor's stock get into your fields, you can neither make him shut them up nor make way with them; so there is nothing you can do but to fix your fence, which in many instances means a great deal of trouble and a taking of labor off your farm at a time when your growing crops most need work.

I make the assertion that farmers cannot keep up their fence sufficiently to turn stock. They are prevented from doing so not only from a financial standpoint but from a labor and time standpoint as well.

Every year it becomes more difficult to turn stock, and every year we have less labor and less time to fence a half-dilapidated fence.

Not only this, but every year the range becomes more eaten out with more stock running at large upon it. There are numbers of people who never pen their cows, and care nothing for damages they inflict.

Every year it becomes more difficult to pen cows at night owing to the fact that they cannot get enough to eat during the run of the day. It is no uncommon sight to observe cattle grazing away in the small hours of night. Any one who has taken the pains to look at the situation squarely in the eye cannot fail to see that stock under such conditions, is more a nuisance than a benefit.

Besides this, it isn't profitable to keep up hundreds of miles of fence against stock that is slowly starving on a large range. It would be much more in line with fairness to all for every one to keep his individual stock shut up as he would be required to do under the stock law. Farmers could under this law keep themselves amply supplied with meat for their own use and also for the market.

We have no system about stock. Probably nine out of ten of the farmers do not pen their cattle at night. Any one who has taken the pains to look at the situation squarely in the eye cannot fail to see that stock under such conditions, is more a nuisance than a benefit.

FORMER POLICE CHIEF VISITING WITH FRIENDS

L. O. Scarborough, now of Miami, Fla., is now spending a month among relatives and friends in Statesboro, accompanied by his wife and two daughters, Misses Grace and Kathleen.

Mr. Scarborough was chief of police in Statesboro for two years prior to his resignation eighteen months ago to move to Florida. He was a good officer. His worth as a peace-preserver was soon recognized in the Florida city and he was employed on the police force of Miami within a few weeks of his removal there, and still retains the position.

However, policing is not his only vocation in life. Indeed, that is only a side-line while he is amassing a fortune dabbling in real estate. He has not been heard to boast of his success in his new home, but friends who know something of his operations assert that he has "made a killing," as everybody else seems to be doing in Florida. He wears a prosperous air, and his friends are willing to concede that he is deserving of whatever good fortune that has come to him in Florida.

One of the first things a good housekeeper wants is a nice dining room, so she can make the family eat in the kitchen.

PICKED UP ABOUT TOWN

Lawyer Renfree says the greatest objection some women have to married life is it takes too long to become a widow.

Marie wants to claim whatever land McMillan finds at the North Pole. We suppose she would use it as she does most of that she already has—as abandoned farms.

"You can't blame a bachelor for getting cold feet on marriage," says Jack Murphy, "when he sees how hot some women make it for their husbands."

There is one truth that has never been shaken, and that is that there is no dull season for the steady advertiser.

"It might also be better for the world," reflects Rev. Mr. Moore, "if more girls jumped out of automobiles and walked home."

An unusual man these days is one who can tell you how the girls he has passed had their hair fixed.

Bob Humphrey is authority for the statement that when some girls have to stay home one evening on account of a broken date, their parents get an idea of how it feels to live in a cage with a wild animal.

We can't help but feel that one of these modern fourth of July's there is more talcum than gunpowder used.

"The man who thinks his wife does just what he wants her to," observes Police Chief Crews, "has at least one more thought coming to him."

SMITH'S ZEALOUS FRIENDS

Friends of New York's Democratic governor, Al Smith, are taking every occasion to announce their intention to deliver a death blow to the party again in 1928.

This announcement is not in words, and it may not be intentional, but the effect of the advocacy of Smith for president is tantamount to a declaration of war on the party's chances for victory in the next election.

Giving Al Smith credit for all the virtues his friends ascribe to him, he might make an acceptable candidate; but his friends are no more zealous in his support than his enemies are in opposition to him. That is one of the anomalies of life—the man who is much loved by many is likewise much hated by many. There is a faction of the Democratic party to whom Al Smith is a synonym of evil. That faction is so large and important that Smith cannot be nominated, nor could he be elected if nominated, perhaps.

The fight which last for six weeks in the last national convention, wherein the Smith faction and McAdoo were at death grips, made clear that there is a chasm between these two elements which cannot be bridged and drive away the faction which was then arrayed against him, as could be imagined. In passing, it may as well be admitted that those Democrats who so ardently admire Smith are worth considering. The Democratic party can nominate a man for president without their aid, but it cannot elect one.

If the Democrats are going to act wise, they will avoid the extremes in the next campaign which were reached in the last. If either Al Smith or McAdoo is to be the nominee, it will mean that the split in the party is growing wider. The enemies of Democracy could not wish for anything better.

There may be ideal husbands and ideal wives, but they don't always marry each other. When a young man talks about himself a good deal he is bound to be a bore to everybody except some fool girl who is love with him.

GO THOU AND DO LIKEWISE

Once a farmer had 1800 bushels of wheat, which he had sold, not to one grain merchant, but to 1800 different dealers, a bushel to each. A few of them paid cash, but far the greater number said they would pay later. A few months passed and the man's bank account ran low. "How is this," he said, "My 1800 bushels of grain should have kept me until another crop is raised, but I have parted with the grain and instead I have a vast number of accounts so small and scattered that I cannot get around and collect fast enough."

So he posted a public notice and asked all who owed him to come and pay quickly. But few came. The rest said: "Mine is only a small matter, I will pay you some day." Though each account was very small, when all were put together it meant a goodly sum to one man, and enough to enable him to pay his own bills and meet his needs. Things went on thus. The man got to feeling so badly that he fell out of bed and awoke. Running to his granary he found the 1800 bushels of wheat still there.

And the moral is this: The next day he went to the publisher of his home-town paper and said: "Here, Sir, is pay for your paper, and when next year's subscription due you can count on me to pay you promptly. I stood in the position of an editor last night, and I know how it feels to have his earnestly-earned money scattered all over the country in small amounts."

There are two things that get you nowhere—eating a little pickle just before going to bed and wearing a $50 suit on an overcoat.

Here's a good sign. Mothers have quit naming their daughters after Pullman cars and gone back to the Marys and Janes.

TAKE A LITTLE REST

When the word "vacation" means as much to the average citizen as the word "blizzard" means to a lot of us today, a fellow didn't do much worrying in advance, for vacations were enjoyed only by those whose pockets were well lined with coin of the realm. It is true that one could ride a good distance on a railroad for a dollar, but in those days it was far more difficult than it is now to get hold of a dollar. And it also seemed that there were more places to put a dollar when we did get hold of it.

Now it is different. Now everyone seems to feel that a vacation, two weeks, to go where he pleases and do what he pleases, is a part of summer living. The auto has made it possible for the entire family to take much longer trips than would be possible if railroad fares had to be reckoned with, and cooking outfits carried in the car also enable its occupants to escape easily heated hotels along the route of travel. If we had nothing else to praise the auto for we could spend a lot of time in praising it for getting the American people out of doors and into the open air.

Ask your family doctor if he thinks you need a vacation—if you are in doubt about it—and he'll tell you truthfully that you do. Time to relax and rest from your work, time to take it easy and plan ahead, time to see just how your neighbors and other communities are spending their time is better than the medicine the doctor could give you. Don't figure a two-weeks' vacation as an unnecessary expense. It will add to both your health and your happiness, and that is enough to make it worth all that it costs.

About the only fellow who is not happy while learning nature's lessons is the chap who has ivy poison and chiggers.

REACHING THE LIMIT

Announcement has been broadcast by the greatest mail-order house in Chicago that it is going into the coal business and will take orders for coal, the same as it does everything else under the sun. The coal will be sold to lodges, churches, groups of neighbors, or to any individual who can use it in carbon lots, and of course the claim is made that the price cannot be met by local dealers. Slowly but surely merchants in small towns are waking up to the steady inroads being made by mail order houses, and now the coal dealer, in smaller communities, are going to feel the pinch. Sooner or later they are going to take the advice that this paper and every other paper in the country, has given them for years—sooner or later they must realize that they've got to stand on their own feet, and that the community what they've got to sell, and then join hands with the papers in showing those people that they are disloyal to their own community when they trade anywhere except home.

Boys are no worse than they ever were. The only difference is they get by with it now, whereas the old-time boy had to face the music. A judge has ruled that a man can not make his girl give back the car and pay quickly. But few came. The rest said: "Mine is only a small matter, I will pay you some day." Though each account was very small, when all were put together it meant a goodly sum to one man, and enough to enable him to pay his own bills and meet his needs. Things went on thus. The man got to feeling so badly that he fell out of bed and awoke. Running to his granary he found the 1800 bushels of wheat still there.

Any records here? Arthur Steadman, of New York, recently came forward in the newspapers to declare that he has worn the same collar button 50 years, or longer than any other man ever possessed one. And he has started something. Now comes J. B. Williams of Maryland, to state that he has lost his collar button for 54 years, and that record appears to stand. At least we haven't seen it disputed in the "collar button contest, now being kept in many papers throughout the country. We've lost so many things in a year would be a record for us, but it may be that some one has learned far better than we have the art of hanging onto them, keeping them from rolling away to an obnoxious place, just as an inopportune moment, therefore, we are calling attention to the "collar button contest" in the hope that possibly some one around here can gain national fame by displaying a collar button that has seen more than 54 years of service.

ANY RECORDS HERE?

My wife's health broke down and for years she was just a physical wreck, says Mr. Thomas Glynn, of Gibson, La. "We did everything we knew, yet she seemed to get worse and worse. She was so weak till she couldn't stand, and had to be carried like a baby. It looked like nothing would save her but that had been done."

"After taking a few doses of Cardui, we were so glad to note that she wanted something to eat, and with each day's doses of Cardui, she grew stronger and got up out of bed. She is now able to cook, and stronger than in a long time."

Cardui has been successful in use for nearly 50 years in the treatment of many common female troubles.

Slats' Diary
(By Row Farquhar.)

Friday—well this has been a very hard day for me. I had to move the yard all over and take it and then I had to trim all round the flower and cut and then I had to wash up my neck and ears and my teeth. The only time I got to rest here of late it is when I'm trying to find something else for me to do. Like a mother job or something.

Saturday—I rate a pretty good game and sent it to Jack today. I haven't heard from her yet. Weather she likes it or not. Yure silly looks like a nice black shoe. Yure pretty slipped fit, at just Yure.

Yure eyes looks like a Pansy in the corner of a boy wife fence. Sunday—well I wanted to go out along the creek and eat and swim and ma and pa wanted to go to the theater and pa wanted to go play Golf and Amy wanted to go to church. The time to see just how your neighbors and other communities are spending their time is better than the medicine the doctor could give you.

Muday—who I was in the drug store today a lady came in and ask for sum Lowee powder for her chickens. Mr. Alhart said. What kind Muddam, and she replied and said. Why they are Plimoth Rocks. I think they are.

Tuesday—I was invited to go and play base ball today but I was tired I guess ma was surprised. I said if I didn't get over soon so lazy at one of these here days I would get rested for Friday.

Wednesday—pa treated he and I to a pitcher show tonight, and he bot a dimes worth of peanuts. We had a lovely time. I just love to sit in a show and Squash peanuts. In my finger.

Thursday—Want to see a grand Opry singer tonight. When we cum home ma was saying she didn't like her announcement very well. Ant Amy said she thit it wood of been all right if they had been a little less red in it and had a ben so low in the back. And short.

48-POUND MELON Arthur Buncce presented the Times editor yesterday with a 48-pound watermelon of the Watson variety. Mr. Buncce has been shipping for several days, and the sample was from his farm near Preterito.

There are still a few old-fashioned girls who sit on the floor when they put their shoes and stockings on.

Some of us can remember the time when men always asked a lady's permission before lighting a cigarette.

A Kansas City man was knocked out of bed the other morning by lightning. It takes that to get some fellows up.

If the Japs use the same kind of matches they send out here, they must have a lot of trouble keeping the home fires burning.

METHODS FOR DISCUSSING TIMELY TOPICS

Rev. Leland Moore, pastor of the Statesboro Methodist church, will deliver the third sermon of the series to young people at the evening hour next Sunday. His subject will be "The Perils of the Modern Dance."

Not only should the young people of Statesboro and Bulloch county heed this message, but every father and mother as well. Sunday morning the pastor will conduct a service especially for children, which will be the Lord's Supper. This is the regular day for the month.

Both of these services will be brief, neither lasting longer than one hour. Everybody is invited. Two sermons of the series to parents, being delivered at the Sunday morning hours, have already been delivered, and the third is scheduled for the morning of the fourth Sunday in July. The sermon next Sunday evening, as above announced, will be the third of the series to young people, and one of the most interesting and practical of the series.

There will be good music at each hour. AT BAPTIST CHURCH At a meeting, the pulpit will be filled by Rev. J. B. Joyner of Miller. Mr. Joyner is a young man of promise and many gifts and no doubt a large audience will greet him Sunday morning and night. Special music has been arranged by the choir for the day. The public is cordially invited.

BUSINESS OUTLOOK IS SHOWING IMPROVEMENT
Atlanta, Ga., July 14.—Business will be better during the last half of 1928 than it has during the first six months of the year—if crop yields are good and farm prices profitable. This is the opinion of C. W. McClure, Atlanta business man who is well informed on business conditions both in town and in country. "Good crops are in prospect and there will be an excellent cotton yield, but the cotton farmers must look out for the boll weevil," said Mr. McClure.

Mr. McClure is president of the McClure Realty and Investment Co. of Atlanta, besides being the owner of a cash of ten-cent stores. The store at Whitehall and Hunter streets, which bore his name for many years, was leased by him some months ago to a northern syndicate.

Next to his first boy, nothing makes a man any prouder than pulling in his first fish.

GEORGIA TAX LAWS
FAIR TO THE PUBLIC
Atlanta, Ga., July 14.—Praise of the existing system of taxation in Georgia, an attack upon the income tax as "a tax on ingenuity and thrift," recommendation for the repeal of the state inheritance tax and a warning to go slow on the proposal for a classification tax were expressed by Rouben B. Arnold, prominent Atlanta lawyer, in an address at the forum luncheon of the Atlanta Chamber of Commerce.

"I am happy to say that Georgia is better off in the matter of taxation than most of our sister states," said Mr. Arnold. "Why only is complaining of our system in Georgia is something that I cannot understand when we look around and see what other people have. Georgia is collecting three times as much in taxes as she did only ten years ago, and she is doing it fairly well at that time."

"To induce capital to come into our state we ought not only to repeal the inheritance tax, which affords us only a very small income, but we ought also to put in the Constitution a clause forbidding the enactment of an income tax."

CRITICISM

By THOMAS ARKLE CLARK
Dean of Miami University of Illinois.

IT IS surprising how many times I find people who are not only ignorant but also stupid. I have sometimes thought that the more imperfect the critic the more likely he is to see the shortcomings and the weaknesses of others rather than to be impressed with their admirable qualities. When one man begins to accuse another of trickery and falsifying, I have not infrequently had my own suspicions. I have never known a man found guilty of stealing who did not think the practice of that quite common, if not universal among his fellows.

Most of the criticism which we hear every day of individuals and of organizations is offered with the mistaken idea that it reveals superior knowledge, a keener intellect, and a better judgment, and a keener insight into human nature than that ordinarily shown. The fellow who criticizes the members of the basketball team who fails to make a basket, or the minister whose sermon is not up to standard, or the government or college official who is not running public or educational affairs to his liking, usually does so in a way to give the impression that he knows a tremendous lot about basketball, or public speaking, or political or college matters, and that if he would only take a hand in any one of these activities, he could show the public a thing or two. There is no form of conceit so colossal as that shown by the self-constituted critic.

Most of the criticism we hear is entirely destructive. It preys upon the weaknesses and frailties of human beings, without trying in any way to remedy them. It is to be criticized, others, very few of us except criticism of ourselves willingly or resent to it logically. If you indicate to the boss at the breakfast table that the coffee is cold or the biscuits underdone, she very likely meets the criticism by asking sarcastically if you posted the letter which she gave you yesterday, or by reaching across and picking a bunch of lint from your coat collar. It is the same principle which accuses the small boy, who, when caught in a lie and accused of it, meets the accusation by telling his accuser that he is "another."

We criticize too much, both private and public individuals; we take personal criticism badly. (See 1218, Western Newspaper Union.)

Beach Suits Reveal Gay "Futurist" Silks
Here is pictured another of those newly arrived beach suits of printed silk, that do so much to make their wearers highly decorative parts of beach scenery. These pretty suits are not so revealing as the regulation swimming suit which follows the lines of the figure—whatever it may be—with merciless fidelity. Beach suits undertake with great success, to do a little flattery.

Among them have appeared the new "futurist" silks, in vivid and beautiful colors, and the reader is referred to the picture for details of approved patterns. They are much mixed up as to design, and only the futurist can explain them, but why worry about explaining beauty? Often short black satin tunics are worn with the colorful overgarment.

Central of Georgia Discusses Requirements For Better Transportation

In fulfilling its obligation to render satisfactory service a railroad finds it necessary to continually enlarge and improve its facilities and equipment. Railroad equipment not only wears out but becomes obsolete. Better facilities and improved rolling stock require huge expenditures annually. Some of these result in the reduction of operating costs and are justified by increased efficiency and economy. Other expenditures result in improvement of the service and are justified by greater comfort, convenience and safety to the traveling public.

In either event, if the expanding needs of business are to be met and if the demands of the public are to be fulfilled, the railroads must be permitted to earn such returns as will attract investors. New capital must be continually secured, and capital cannot be coerced—capital can only be attracted to railroad stocks and bonds by assurances as to the safety of the investment and of reasonable dividends. Illustrating these truths by the experience of the Central of Georgia it would be possible for the railroad to continue the use of its present passenger train cars for a number of years to come, but the public, even on branch lines, desires and expects steel coaches, electric lighted, vestibuled and steam heated instead of wooden coaches, lighted by oil or gas, and heated by stoves. It is, therefore, the policy of the Central of Georgia to add annually, as rapidly as its financial condition justifies, the most modern passenger equipment.

The public expects and demands continual improvement to passenger stations. Where depots are of wooden construction or of small size, there is insistence that they be replaced by structures of modern design and that train sheds afford protection from the weather.

While there is no pressure upon railway management for undue speed, the public has come to expect, as a matter of course, fast trains that will operate on time for the handling of both passenger and freight. This takes for granted numerous factors that entail large outlays such as good roadbed, heavy steel rail, large locomotives, steel and concrete bridges and trestles, built to sustain increased weights and speeds of engines and cars, safety devices such as block signals, and finally a personnel that shall be characterized both by efficiency and courtesy. The tools, machinery and facilities essential to satisfactory service cost money and the human element, if of the high type, expected, must be well paid.

The Central of Georgia does not consider the traveling public unreasonable in anticipating a high standard of service. We take both pride and pleasure in measuring up to the anticipation of our patrons and we hope to continue to do so even in the face of a steadily decreasing passenger traffic due to improved highways and automobile competition.

It has been our experience that the public, with high standards of living, desires adequate and dependable transportation rather than cheaper transportation. If the railroads are to continue to supply transportation of the type that the public expects and demands, they in turn must receive such rates and must be accorded such treatment by the various regulatory agencies interpreting public policy as to secure the flow of new capital upon which their future depends.

Constructive criticism and suggestions are invited.
L. A. DOWNS,
President Central of Georgia Railway Company.

COLEMAN DISPLAYS FIRST OPEN COTTON FOR SEASON

C. C. Coleman sent to the Times office Monday the first open bolls for the season, there being two on one limb open. Mr. Coleman states that this was gathered from a field of 50 acres which is now beginning to open, and which promises a good yield.

It is a matter of general gratification that the cotton crop of this section is most promising, there never having been better prospects at this season. Many fields are now full of fruit just ready to begin opening, and cotton is blossoming from top to bottom of the stalks. Bulloch county is going to experience a wave of prosperity during the coming fall, and it is confidently believed that the first bale will be sold on the market here within ten days.

DEPUTY SHERIFF MALLARD TO MAKE HOME IN FLORIDA

Deputy Sheriff Mallard left during the week for Ft. Lauderdale, Fla., where he will join the Statesboro colony which has grown to important dimensions during the past year.

Mr. Mallard made a visit to Ft. Lauderdale several days ago and was so favorably impressed that he resigned his position with the Sheriff's office immediately and made arrangements to go to Florida. He has been office deputy and jailor for the past five years, and has been a valuable man in the office of his brother, Sheriff B. T. Mallard.

Deputy Joe Tillman will have charge of the jail, and for the time being, will conduct the office as well.

There is much to be said for a railroad engineer, his job may be a dangerous one but he doesn't have to stand around while a book agent talks to him.
